REGIONALISM IS A FINE ELEMENT IN AMERICAN LIFE—PRESERVE IT!

America is a land of 3,000,000 square miles, with probably more variety of climate, terrain and resources than any other area of similar size anywhere. Yet life in this country is cast into an amazingly standardized mold.

For this we can thank the movies, the radio, the automobile, the railroad, the airplane and now television—all the influences that draw us together and tend to level out our differences.

Insofar as this still-widening contact among Americans leads to deeper understandings and greater tolerance of people, it is a healthy gain. No nation as big in territory as the United States has the unity of spirit we have. Most of us think and act as Americans first, and only secondly as people of a particular region or state or city.

This unity, this mutual understanding make for the free flow of people, of ideas, of resources and goods across state lines. The result is the general enrichment of the whole country. Contacts beget more common understanding.

But there is another side. Many potentially rich ingredients of American life are blotted out by the uniformity that spreads itself through our entertainment, our social activity, our daily habits. The high school girl in Vermont too often has the same basic tastes and interests as the high school girl in Texas or Minnesota.

Now we can't throw all our modern inventions into the discard and go back to living in ignorance of each other's problems and interests. These powerful influences for unity—and standardization—are here for good.

Still, a lot of social scientists think the American people ought not to succumb completely to a process that could rob their lives of all real social individuality. These scholars believe that what they call regionalism is a strong and necessary counteracting force which should be developed further if we are to avoid a barren sameness in our living.

Regionalism is a term meant to express the bond in habits and ideas that exists among people of particular sections of the country. Those who put great store in this notion explain its possible role in America this way:

They say that even though standardization has made heavy inroads, striking differences persist in every distinct region of the United States. The wise course, they add, is to preserve and develop these regional traits so they will not be wiped out.

Regional folk music, art, and literature; habits of cooking and eating; manners of speech; unusual social customs; religious practices; distinctive educational features; these are samples of the characteristics the scientists have in mind.

But they don't want to exalt these traits and particularly regional problems above national needs. They believe regional life should be thought of as contributing richly varied detail to the big national canvas. Without it, the picture will lack the bright variety it should have.

The scientists distinguish regionalism from sectionalism, defining the latter as a narrow concentration on area interests at the expense of wider concerns.

To use this force calls for conscious effort. People in New England, the South, the Middle West and elsewhere must look closely at their way of living now and as it once was. They must try to single out the unique elements and develop them vigorously, but they must be characteristics of real value today.

Only thus, say the regional experts, can these fine influences be made strong enough to resist the constantly encroaching standardization which finds its way into almost every corner. If the effort isn't made, much of the remaining variety in American life may some day be buried beyond salvaging.

Zelma F. Wallace, Roy Lee Goewey Wed At Jerseyville

Jerseyville—The Peace Evangelical and Reformed church of Jerseyville was the scene of the wedding of Miss Zelma Faye Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry E. Wallace of Jerseyville, and Roy Lee Goewey, son of Mrs. Jessie Goewey, which took place Oct. 22. Rev. J. Wintner Stecker, pastor, performed the double-ring service at seven o'clock in the evening.

Two sisters of the bride were her attendants, Miss Patricia Mae Wallace, maid of honor, and Mrs. David Fessler, bridesmaid. Robert Rethus was best man for Mr. Goewey and Donald Fessler was groomsmen. The ushers were Steven Goewey and Louis Wallace, brothers of the couple.

The bride gown was of white satin, fashioned with a net yoke outlined by ruffles. The skirt was extended by hoops and ended in a medium train. She wore the bridegroom's gift, a strand of pearls, and carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a purple-throated orchid. Her veil was fingertip in length and was secured by a Juliette cap of stucco lace.

A reception was given in the church parlors following the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Goewey left later for a redoubt trip to the Ozarks and Hot Springs, Ark., and upon their return will reside in Jerseyville.

Absentee Ballots Issued To 67 At Clerk's Office

Sixty-seven Morgan county citizens who will be absent from the county next Tuesday, Nov. 8, have made application for absentee ballots which will be cast in the election for commissioner and other officials.

County Clerk George T. Douglas announced that his office will remain open until 5 p. m. Saturday for the purpose of receiving applications for absentee ballots, and to distribute election supplies to judges and clerks in readiness for the election, Tuesday.

The major office to be filled is that of county commissioner. The candidates are Walter Peery, Republican, and Virgil Weehoff, Democrat. Mr. Peery, who resides in the Lincoln precinct, and Mr. Weehoff is a resident of Concord precinct.

Judges of the peace and constables will be elected Tuesday.

Merle Beddingfield, well known auctioneer and farmer near Concord, couldn't figure out what he'd "done" when a police officer halted him Tuesday at a busy intersection in Springfield.

Mr. Beddingfield stopped, like all good citizens, when a traffic officer toots his whistle.

Officer John Nolan of the Springfield police department informed Mr. Beddingfield that he had been selected as the day's most courteous driver in a campaign sponsored by the Springfield Florists' Association. He was presented with a large bouquet of flowers.

Judges in the campaign spotted Mr. Beddingfield as he approached Fifth and Washington streets, for his consideration of pedestrians.

Rotary Governor Says World Peace Is Goal

Mrs. Pansy Wilcox Dies At Pittsfield; Rites Saturday

Bluffs—Mrs. Pansy Wilcox, 32, wife of Hardy Wilcox, died Thursday afternoon at Illinois hospital in Pittsfield, where she had been a patient for one week.

The Wilcox family, who resided in Pike county for about three years, had recently returned to Scott county and had been living on a farm in the Naples community.

Mrs. Wilcox was a native of Waverly and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dennis of Pittsfield. She was married to Mr. Wilcox on Oct. 15, 1932.

She is survived by her husband; her parents; four children, Paul, Mary, Frances and Louise, all at home; four brothers, Lando and Wesley of New Canton, Julius of Murrayville and Leslie of Philadelphia, Mo.; and four sisters, Mrs. Goldie Cox and Mrs. Marie Dowers of Pittsfield and Mrs. Pauline Stark and Mrs. Hester Farrin of Jerseyville.

Both Great Books Groups To Meet

Meetings have been scheduled by both of the Great Books discussion groups. The first year group will meet Nov. 14 at the library to discuss "The Clouds," attack having spread to 81 nations and posing the professors of ancient Attic-British subdivisions of the world in this; and "The Birds," which is a 44 years.

The second year group will meet at the library Nov. 14 to study the principles of literary criticism laid down by Aristotle in his "Poetics." The interest will center on the relations of these 2,000-year old statements to modern drama.

LEAVE AFTER VISIT

Robert E. Knowles and Miss Betty Nelson have returned to their homes in Crystal Lake, Ill., after visiting his mother, Mrs. Earl Knowles, 312 North Church street.

Speaking Friday before the Jacksonville Rotary club, Dr. Harold W. Fitch of Bushnell, Ill., governor of District 212 of Rotary International, said that 81 countries throughout the world are today united in an endeavor to promote international understanding, good will and peace.

DR. HAROLD W. FITCH

In addition to the activities of Rotary's 7,000 clubs in their own communities to promote this objective, Dr. Fitch explained, during the next three years Rotary International will spend $750,000, principally to create better understanding among the peoples of different nations. One of the principal ways in which this money will be spent will be on Rotary Foundation fellowships which will enable outstanding graduate students to study abroad for one year as ambassadors of good will.

Since this program was established in 1937, 111 fellowships have been awarded to students in 37 countries. Speaking on "Observable Trends in Rotary," the speaker called attention to Rotary's rapid growth, ending with: "The Clouds," attack having spread to 81 nations and posing the professors of ancient Attic-British subdivisions of the world in this; and "The Birds," which is a 44 years.

"Devoted to service, Rotary provides a common ground for a third of a million business and professional executives throughout the world, regardless of nationalities or political or religious beliefs," the Rotary governor emphasized. "The trend of Rotary is to stress understanding as the basis of friendship and good will, whether between individuals or nations."

Health Director Issues Warning On Rabbit Fever

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 4.—"Unless additional care is exercised by hunters and persons who dress wild rabbits, we can begin to expect the annual rise in tularemia cases with the opening of rabbit season on November 11," Dr. Roland R. Cross, state director of public health warned today.

Health department statistics show that about 90 per cent of the 540 cases of tularemia which have occurred in Illinois during the last five years have been contracted through the skinning and dressing of infected wild rabbits. The records also show a marked rise in the prevalence of this disease during the months of November through January, when rabbit hunting is allowed.

Contrary to popular belief, however, the rabbit is not the only source of human infection with tularemia, Dr. Cross pointed out. The infection is also known to lurk in wild fowl, pheasant and quail, and to be transmitted by ticks, fleas and other biting insects.

26 Deaths In 5 Years
In order to avoid possible contracting of this serious disease which has caused 26 deaths in Illinois in the last five years, Dr. Cross urged housewives and hunters to be extremely careful in the handling of the game. He recommended the wearing of rubber gloves while dressing the animals, and emphasized that the person should keep his hands away from the eyes during the preparation.

Humans contract tularemia through the germs coming into contact with abrasions on the skin, open sores and through the eyes. It is believed that the germs are destroyed by thorough cooking, he said.

Dr. Cross also pointed out that a rabbit suffering from tularemia is apt to be sluggish, and not prone to run when flushed by the hunter. He recommended that a rabbit, or game bird, showing these symptoms not be handled to insure greater safety from this disease.

Jacksonville High "Herald" Receives High Recognition

"The Herald," the Jacksonville High school newspaper, has received word that it has been rated second in the All-American Critical Service of the National Scholastic Press Association. The second semester issues of the '48-'49 school year were entered in competition with a large number of other schools.

The paper was rated highest on front page make-up, news writing and editing. "The Herald" is a bi-weekly student paper. It had its beginning in 1902 when the high school was established. The paper has had several different names, some of them being "The Nautillus" and "The Exhaust." Later, through a contest in 1925, the name was changed to "The Herald."

Dies Of Injuries Suffered At Race Track In Peoria

Leslie Hungerford of Peoria, who has a number of relatives in Morgan county, died Wednesday night at St. Francis hospital in Peoria from injuries he sustained at an automobile speedway in East Peoria two weeks ago.

Hungerford, who was 37 years old, was struck by one of the racing cars when it went out of control. He suffered fractures of both legs and internal injuries.

Word of his death was received by his aunt, Mrs. Maggie Hungerford, of Jacksonville Route 6. Several relatives from this community will attend the funeral services, which will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Peoria.

Mr. Hungerford was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hungerford of Canton, Mo., and had lived in the Jacksonville community many times. His wife and five children survive.

AMOMA CLASS MEETING NEXT WEEK
The quarterly business meeting of the Amoma Bible class of the First Baptist church, originally scheduled for Nov. 4, will be Monday, Nov. 7. It will be preceded by a potluck supper at 6:30, to which each is to bring a covered dish and table service.

Metal has replaced glass to a large extent in the construction of many television receiving tubes.

ATTENTION VOTERS
Elect Wegehoff and be assured of good government for everyone in Morgan county. (Pol. Adv.)

Pupils Give Program At B.P.W.C. Meeting

The program for the Business and Professional Women's club meeting Tuesday evening was presented by a group of school children in conjunction with the club's observance of American Education Week.

The program was arranged by the education and vocations committee of which Lena Heim is chairman and Violet Auerbach co-chairman. Other committee members are Vera Guntner, Elsie Evans, Della Simmons and Helen West.

"How Jacksonville Schools Observe Education Week" was depicted in a play presented by students of Franklin elementary school. Appearing in the play, which was written and directed by Ida Simmons, were Penny Ball, Danny May, Rosalind McDermott, Bob Devore, Junior Coats, Peggy Burton, Charles Clegg and Beverly Skinner.

A chorus composed of children from the Franklin school, under the direction of Martha Symons, sang "God Is Love," "Over the Rainbow" and "Morning Bells." Members of the chorus were Carol Omundson.

Guests present were Mrs. E. D. Bringham, Mrs. Virginia Ringham, Mrs. Don Auwater, Sally Ball, Misses Catherine Wood, Adeline Minkus, Boogie Weatherford and Ruth Pritchard. Mrs. Joseph Cleland and Mrs. L. L. Omundson were visiting mothers during the program.

The supper committee for the Nov. 17 meeting will consist of Agnes Paxton and Frances Webb. Inogene Stotter will serve as cashier.

W.S.C.S. Luncheon Held Wednesday At Centenary Church

The W. S. C. S. of Centenary Methodist church met for a luncheon Wednesday noon at the church. Thirty-seven members and guests were present.

Hostesses were Mrs. Robert Hembrough, chairman, Mrs. Ora Campbell, Mrs. Bessie Harrison, Mrs. Emma Fenstermaker, Mrs. Louis Freitag, Mrs. Kenneth Mathews, Miss Myrtle Larimore, Mrs. Cora Hart, Mrs. Frank Drury and Mrs. Mary Hatfield.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Olan Gotschall, who introduced Mrs. Wilbur Kurtz and Miss Catherine Schirz, who told of the need for Girl Scout leaders and sponsors in Jacksonville.

Devotional leader was Mrs. Emma Snyder, who had as her topic "The Rise of the Bright and Morning Star in Pakistan." She was assisted at the piano by Mrs. Ernest Hoagland. The lesson on "The Land of the Present and Five-Pointed Star" was presented by Mrs. C. P. Siegfried, program leader.

Mrs. Campbell spoke concerning the world service banquet, which is to be held at the church Nov. 9. Announcements were also made relative to the pieces for peace project for World Community Service day and the payment of dues to the United Council of Church Women.

Reports were given by the leaders, Mrs. E. S. Hutson and Mrs. Ernest Hoagland. Leadership of Circle Three was accepted by Mrs. Cora Hart. This circle will hold its first meeting Nov. 11 with Mrs. Gotschall.

320 Acre Farm Brings $58,600

Carrollton—The 320 acre farm in the estate of the late Mrs. Frank Strang sold at a Master in Chancery sale here Tuesday and brought $58,600. The farm was purchased by Mrs. Pearl B. Bauer of Greenfield and was bought as an investment.

The farm is located between Carrollton and Greenfield just north of Route 108.

The tract was offered in two parts and the farm having the buildings brought approximately $227 an acre and an eighty acre tract brought approximately $50 an acre.

COOPERATION THEME OF FARM HOME ADVISERS' MEETING

Ways of coordinating agricultural and home economics extension programs for Farm and Home Bureau work were discussed by farm and home advisers at their semi-annual district conference, Thursday in Farm Bureau hall.

The conference sessions were conducted by Francis Longmire, assistant state leader of agricultural extension, and Mrs. Gertrude Kaiser, home adviser at large of the extension service.

Also representing the U. of I. extension service were Mrs. Kathryn Vanaken Burns, state leader in home economics, and Dr. W. G. Kammlade, associate director of agriculture.

Program planning was discussed, with attention focused on the importance of working together constructively.

Counties represented at the meeting were Pike, Calhoun, Jersey, Greene, Sangamon, Cass, Logan, Montgomery, Macoupin, Scott and Morgan.

ALL IN A NIGHT'S WORK
Washington—(AP)—A tall man entered the West End Delicatessen and ordered some bologna. As the proprietor handed it to him he drew a gun and made off with $110—and the bologna.

Three hours later a tall man entered Moses Goldberg's grocery, ordered bologna, drew a gun, walked out with $2—and the bologna. Forty-five minutes later a tall man entered Mrs. Vasilke Garoufles' grocery, ordered bologna, drew a gun, walked out with $60—and the bologna.

The next night a tall man entered the Rainbow Market, ordered bologna, brandished an ice-pick, knocked down the clerk, hit the checkout key on the cash register and fled with $30—and the Bologna.

ITALY PLANS HOLY YEAR TOURIST CROP
Rome—(AP)—Italy is getting ready to harvest a lush crop of "average" tourists during the 1950 Holy Year. The Central Tourist Office, in a progress report on efforts to make Italy more attractive to tourists, disclosed that 20,000 establishments over the country now offer 355,000 beds for the visitors.

Since the postwar tourist crop is more on the quantity than quality side, the office seeks to provide modest accommodations rather than deluxe hotels.

The CAMEO

By Virginia Teale Copyright 1949, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THIS STORY: A poor, crumpled, worn shirt or more, has been offered for sale by Martin Falter, one of Dolorosa's street residents. Hagar Blair wants it, but can't afford it. Stephanie Smith, who works in Hagar's little shop, also wants it. As the shirt is being offered by Falter to take the shirt to a San Francisco art dealer, it is stolen by a thief. Tom O'Neill, meanwhile, has taken Andrei Yakov, a Russian artist, to the Falter, but had him not home.

NEEL ONEILL'S voice came in a low, steady tone. "Do we go in pursuit?" Andrei Yakov asked with a half-smile. "No!" she answered with suppressed fury. "It would only give Tom a chance to make a big scene. We'll go on to Hagar Blair's."

NEEL kept silent as they drove to the Three Wishes Shop. She was reviewing, bitterly, the many other occasions when Tom had made an ugly issue of certain friendships of hers. She cringed inwardly as she recalled the lashings he'd given her with that foolish tongue of his. Always, during their violent quarrels, he'd bring up her former career, taunting her with his favorite epithet, "slag party prima donna." She'd been serious about her dancing, had tried to be artistic about it. She might have made something of herself, if she hadn't given up her career to marry Tom. At that time, however, marrying rich Tom O'Neill hadn't seemed a bad idea. She needed money desperately at the time they met and had sold him the canon, weeping pathetically and telling him it was a precious family heirloom. Tom had wept into his champagne and had given her a large sum for the brooch. Then, on their wedding day, he'd made a great ceremony of giving it back.

He told her it had been a lifelong ambition to install a beautiful wife in a cozy studio home and live out his life among sympathetic creative friends. He qualified himself for this group by calling himself a "ceramist."

Once she had hoped to persuade Tom to give up Dolorosa. But right at the crucial moment, one of his miserable clay pots had won a minor prize at the Laguna Beach Festival of Arts. He had conducted a three-day celebration and had vowed to dedicate the rest of his days to "his art." In Dolorosa!

Now the cameo was her only means of escape. Provided it turned out to be the rare piece Yakov was looking for. And, provided she could get it back, somehow, from Martin Falter.

He saw the figure of Tom O'Neill. Standing opposite him, feet apart, in a careless attitude, was a tall man.

Neel expanded. "He's got hold of Martin. No telling what he'll say to him."

Yakov, noting the creases of worry and annoyance around his large blue eyes, suggested something. "Perhaps he will tell our friend Martin Falter that we are here seeking his company."

Neel, staring intently down the hill, did not answer. As she watched, Martin turned from Tom as though to start up the hill. Tom followed and grabbed Martin's arm, the two men faced each other once more and seemed to be arguing. Martin turned his face toward the top of the hill and lifted a hand in salute. He gave no further sign of recognition, however. "Do we go in pursuit?" Andrei Yakov asked with a half-smile. "No!" she answered with suppressed fury. "It would only give Tom a chance to make a big scene. We'll go on to Hagar Blair's."

500 Cars To Get

Money For Drugs

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A 19-year-old youth said today, police reported, that he burglarized more than 500 automobiles in a nine-month period to get money for drugs.

He is Enrid Hassan, arrested Oct. 31. He was charged with larceny from an automobile and taken to county jail hospital for further questioning.

Detective Peter Murphy said Hassan's room in a north-side hotel contained four sacks of assorted loot, including two pistols. One was stolen from the car of a Wauwatosa.

Mrs. O. W. Gould attended the "Wings Over Jordan" choir entertainment Wednesday evening in Jacksonville.

The Methodist church congregation received word Thursday of the death of Rev. Charles Junk. Rev. Junk was a former pastor of the church here, leaving at the beginning of World War II when he entered the service as chaplain.

Mrs. Richard Sayre, who lives southwest of Franklin, was elected vice president of the Franklin unit of the Morgan-Scott Bone Bureau at the meeting held recently at the Centenary Methodist church in Jacksonville.

Most of the thefts Murphy said Hassan described were on Chicago's near north side.

Murphy said Hassan told them he had been a drug addict for nine months and used ten capsules of
